Missing

Case #: 219
Name: Webby the Wolf
Address: 5701 Oakton
Skokie, IL. 60077
Height: 8 in.
Weight: 2 lb. 4 oz.
Sex: Male
Hair: Mixed Gray
Race: Wolf
Birthdate: Aug. 28, 2001

The morning of June 30th was a somber one for Dr. Roger Stein. This was the last time he was in his office as principal. He made the familiar journey down the hall and entered the main office. He greeted the secretaries with a smile and continued on to his office in the back.

As Dr. Stein turned the door handle, he prepared himself for the barks of his cheerful companion for the last two years, Webby the Wolf. But all he heard was silence. Confused, he entered and a sorry sight met his worried eyes. The tasty string cheese treat that Webby indulged in every morning was left strewn on the floor. Dr. Stein began to panic. Webby was missing and the only clue to identify his whereabouts was his tiny paw print leading out the door...

The Westway

"My hair represents my true personality: wild, crazy, and not afraid to stand out."
--Brandon Corday ('04)

Fashion and Hairstyles

Right: Popular, since 1892, abercrombie logos can be seen on a majority of our students. Here, Christopher McKinney ('05) must be "feelin' lucky" that he hasn't been caught with that cell phone!

Above: Our school is filled with spirit--everywhere you look, someone is sporting Niles West gear. Gregory Eastman ('05) and Jessica Plaia ('05) show off their NW football hoodies.
Right: They're expensive, but they're popular. Sure you can buy a generic pair, but everyone craves a real pair of Birkenstocks. Colleen Kearns ('05) and Stephanie Scharaga ('05) take a break from walking to show off their shoes.

Right: Sleepy or Dopey if you want to know if Monday really do have more fun, ask Jennifer Nadkin ('04) and Lauren Pantazis ('04). Over the past few years, chunky Mondo highlights have been the rage.

Left: Nude, beige, tan... any shade of brown is the hottest color trend of the season. Laura Lee's ('04) outfit mirrors simple blue jeans with her sensational tanned skin shown as she drinks from her very popular Nalgene bottle.

Below: Old fashions keep coming back. Ambreen Lakhani ('04) bares her shoulders as she hands a fellow student a survey.

Above: Julia Klein's ('07) big smile is the best accessory that you can have, but her beautiful braids help brighten up her face.

Left: Ashley Polikoff ('04) is not afraid to go to extremes as she creatively matches a leather skirt, combat boots, and a funky t-shirt.

Summer

A time for vacations

"I went to India over the summer and saw the Taj Mahal. It was so beautiful. It amazes me that a man could love a woman so much that he would build such an amazing monument to commemorate her death. --Priyanka Kalapurayil ('05)"

Above: Swimming with the dolphins isn't just a fantasy for Sandy Machugin ('05). In August she when to Cozumel, Mexico and developed a special relationship with Foxie the dolphin.
Right: Uh oh, is Mike Zima ('05) in trouble? Nope, he stops to take a picture with some officers keeping the peace on Wall Street.

Right: Run, run, run as far as you can. That's what these boys from the cross country team did for three days this summer. They went to Delaven, Wisconsin, and stayed at Coach Pat Savage's summer house. Although they were running an average of fifteen miles a day, they still found time to chill at the pool and go tubing in the lake.

Left: "Sarah, have you shrunk? Nope, that's just one big tree. Sarah Tilling ('04) went on a ten day long trip to Sequoia National park.
Below: Clarissa of Monaco: French club members stand by a statue of the evil Grimaldi prince, disguised as a monk in order to enter the palace.

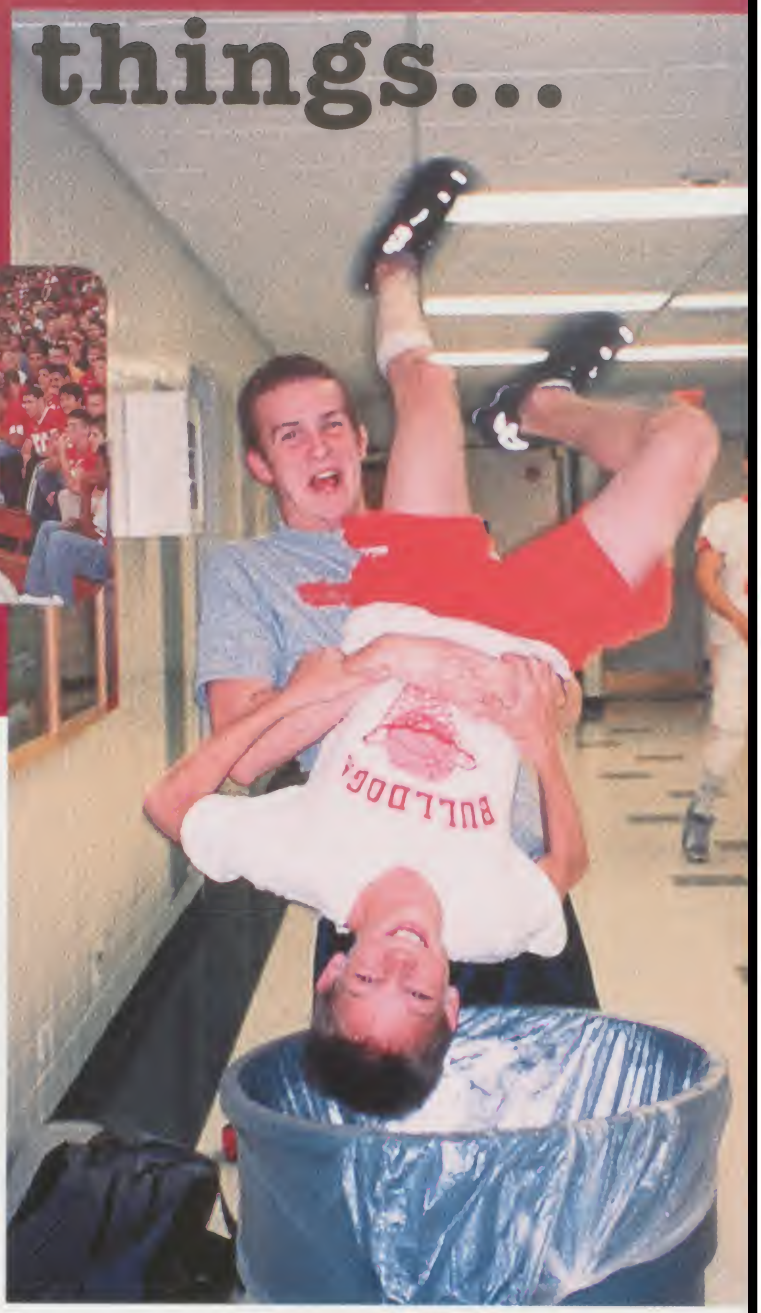
Left: How would you like to go on a six and a half week trip to places like the Grand Canyon, Yellowstone National Park, Hollywood, Alcatraz, Graceland, and the Mall of America? Lia Lehrer ('05) did! Here she is putting her hands in Judy Garland's handprints at Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood. Above: "The hills are alive with the sound of music." Juniors Elizabeth Messer ('05), Mariel Snyder ('05), Jill Sadur ('05), and Katie Schmidt ('05) had the wonderful experience of going to Austria as part of the summer orchestra trip to Europe.

When funny things...

happen to nice people

Right: " Getting your name and number called in front of the whole school is a great feeling. Unless you trip, fall, and embarrass yourself in front of everyone." stated Eddy Ymeri ('04).

Left: The myth is true! What do seniors do to freshmen? Erik Granlund ('04), in a fit of rage, puts Robert Loding ('07) in his place. Just goes to show you, do not get in a senior's way!



Above: No, this isn't Halloween. Maria Powell ('07) is participating in an old tradition. Mina Azarnoosh ('06) is showing these girls how to really put on some make up.
Left: Who says a swimming cap isn't an accessory? "Keep laughing guys! This cap is a babe magnet!" stated Brandon Corday ('04).

Right: 'Nighty night, little Gillian Ouska ('05). Who knew a soccer player's idea of good luck was to sleep on an ironing board before every game? Maybe that's why she's so good.

Left: Aww, how sweet! It's sleepy time for Parker Amsberry ('06). Scott Kundsen ('06), being the great friend that he is, carries Parker up to bed. Will there be any bedtime stories tonight?

Below: You can look but you can't touch! Bradley Cohn ('05) shows how comfortable a girl's swimsuit is compared to a guy's.

Above: Showing support for the football team, Megan Hayes ('04) desperately tries to juggle all the rolls of toilet paper coming at her.

Left: After being ditched by his date after Homecoming, Omar Salem ('04) shares an intimate dinner with his good pal, Webby. I wonder who's going to get the check?

After School

School's Out

"This job really stinks. But I like it; it puts money in my wallet and gas in my car."

Right: Anita Tai ('04) helps customer Michelle Lacazi ('06) find an item at Michaels

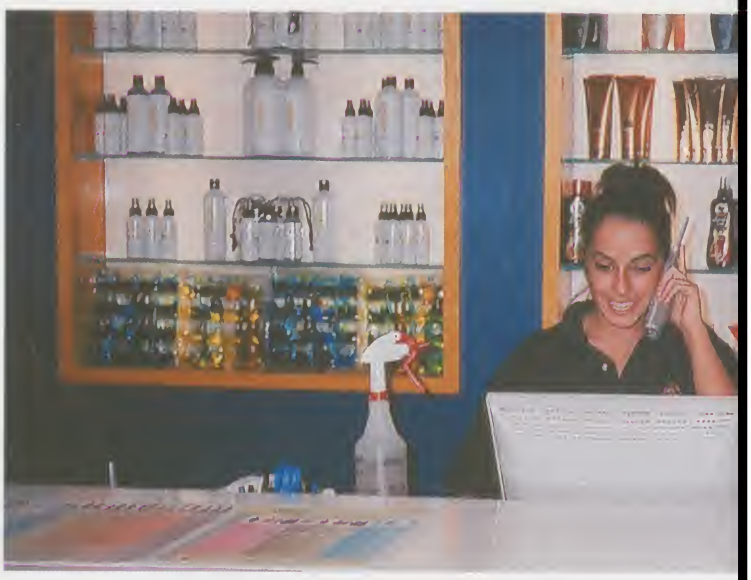
What do you do after school?

Go Home/ Chill	31%
Sports	24%
Homework	19%
Clubs	9%
Work	7%
Watch TV/ Go Online	6%
Other	4%



Right: Answering the phone is only part of Sandra Israel's ('04) job. Maybe her tan is a perk at Palm Beach Tan.

Most people think that when the 2:45 bell rings, everyone rushes to catch the bus or a ride home. But the reality is that Jane dashes off to tennis, Joe sprints to S.A.V.E. Club, and Jessie works in the bookstore. And if that isn't bad enough, they all have homework that must be completed before the mod 2 bell rings the next day. Whether they work, hang out, study, participate in sports, or join clubs, students at Niles West are busy every hour of the day.

Above: Surrounded by cigarettes on all sides, Stephanie Lee ('04) makes sure to point out the "We Card" sign to her customers.

Left: Don't worry about bad service. Jessica Drachenberg ('06) helps Jorie Glassner ('04) and Nik Emerson ('04) in West's book store.

"We Are Family"

My brothers, sisters, and me!

"We get along great! We are best friends. I help Jack ('06) cross the street when we walk to Niles West. Actually, I have saved his life a couple of times."
-- Loreen Targos ('04)

Right: Older only by eight minutes, Mickey Noonan ('04) feels obliged to keep his little sister Kiki ('04) safe by helping her fasten her life jacket.

Above: Bill Souferis ('04) tries to get younger sister Christine ('07) to smile for the camera but she backs away because he just threw her teddy bear out the window.

Right: Older and wiser sister, Megan Hayes ('04) pulls back giddy Deirdre ('07) as she tries to run towards the camera.

Left: Brr... it's cold outside. Theresa Pessaud ('05) looks about ready to go inside, but she will have to wait for older sister Stephanie ('04). Who uses a broom to "shovel" a walkway??

Above: Jessica Tarnoff ('07) points accusingly at Rachel ('04) for stealing her plant in the middle of the night. I think we need take her finger print.

Left: "Splish splash," they're taking a bath! Here are Jackie ('04) and Sabrina Snowsky ('07) enjoying bath time while they get "so fresh and so clean, clean!"

Far Left: Jacob Strassberger ('07) says "give me ten," but older sister, Marissa ('04), only offers up five.

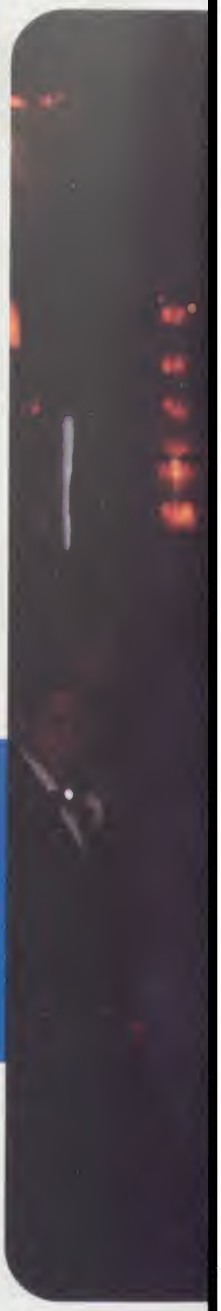
WHO special events?

Right: Although Joseph Piekos ('02) had a broken ankle, he and Carolyn Zich ('03) were all smiles the whole night, whether on the dance floor or off.
Below: These couples pose for a pucture after the garter dance. As you can see, brightly colored dresses were a fashion "must have" at the 2003 Prom.



Everybody Dance Now

Prom 2003

Below: Mark Krier ('03) shows off his dimples as Andrea Markewych ('04) plants a quick one on his cheek. And the best part is they didn't even know the camera was watching.

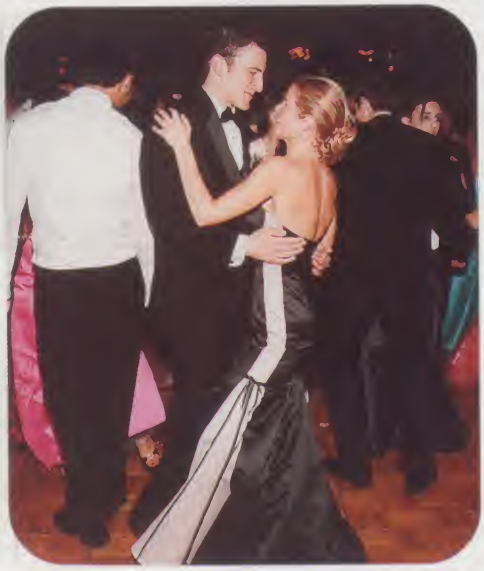
Left: Here, Stephanie Sacha ('03) leads a conga line around the whole room. She could be found on the dance floor for the rest of the night, showing off her best moves.



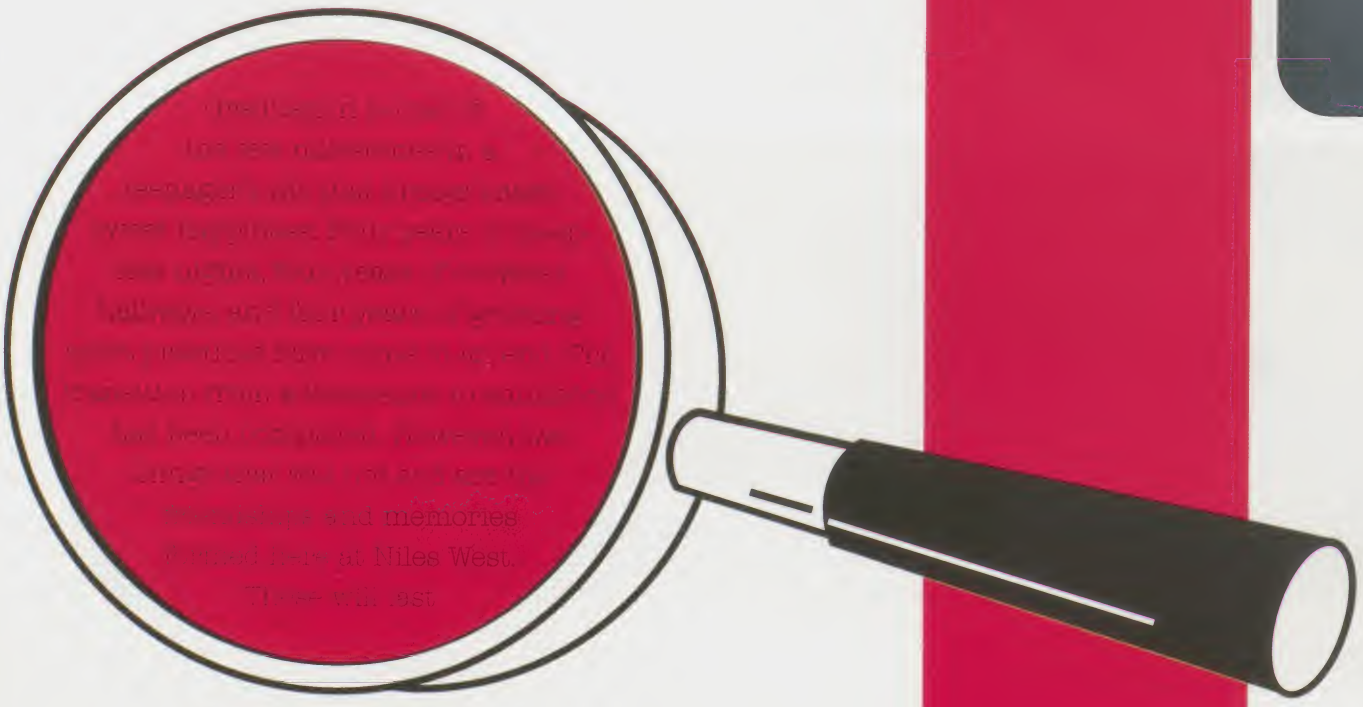
Left: Ryan Pollyea ('02) and Dale Mackey ('03) reminisce about their high school years as they dance the night away.
Far left: Senior sweethearts Corinne O'Reilly ('03) and Peter Dubs ('03) have a contest to see who can make the silliest face.

Right: Thumbs up! Nicholas Jacobucci can barely contain his excitement, sprinting down the hall as a new Niles West alum. Maybe his energy is a product of graduation jitters.

Below: Hats off to the Niles West Class of 2003! You've finally made it through four years of challenging academics.

Milestones

Graduation



Left: Shahbaz Ahmed and Lester Niedzielski point at the camera, diplomas in hand, as if to say, "You 'da man." As you can tell from their faces, they are most impressed with themselves as graduates.

Below: Rebecca Cornici gleefully accepts her diploma. Every student feels a sense of accomplishment upon graduation, but the diploma is a tangible reward for a student's academic accomplishment.

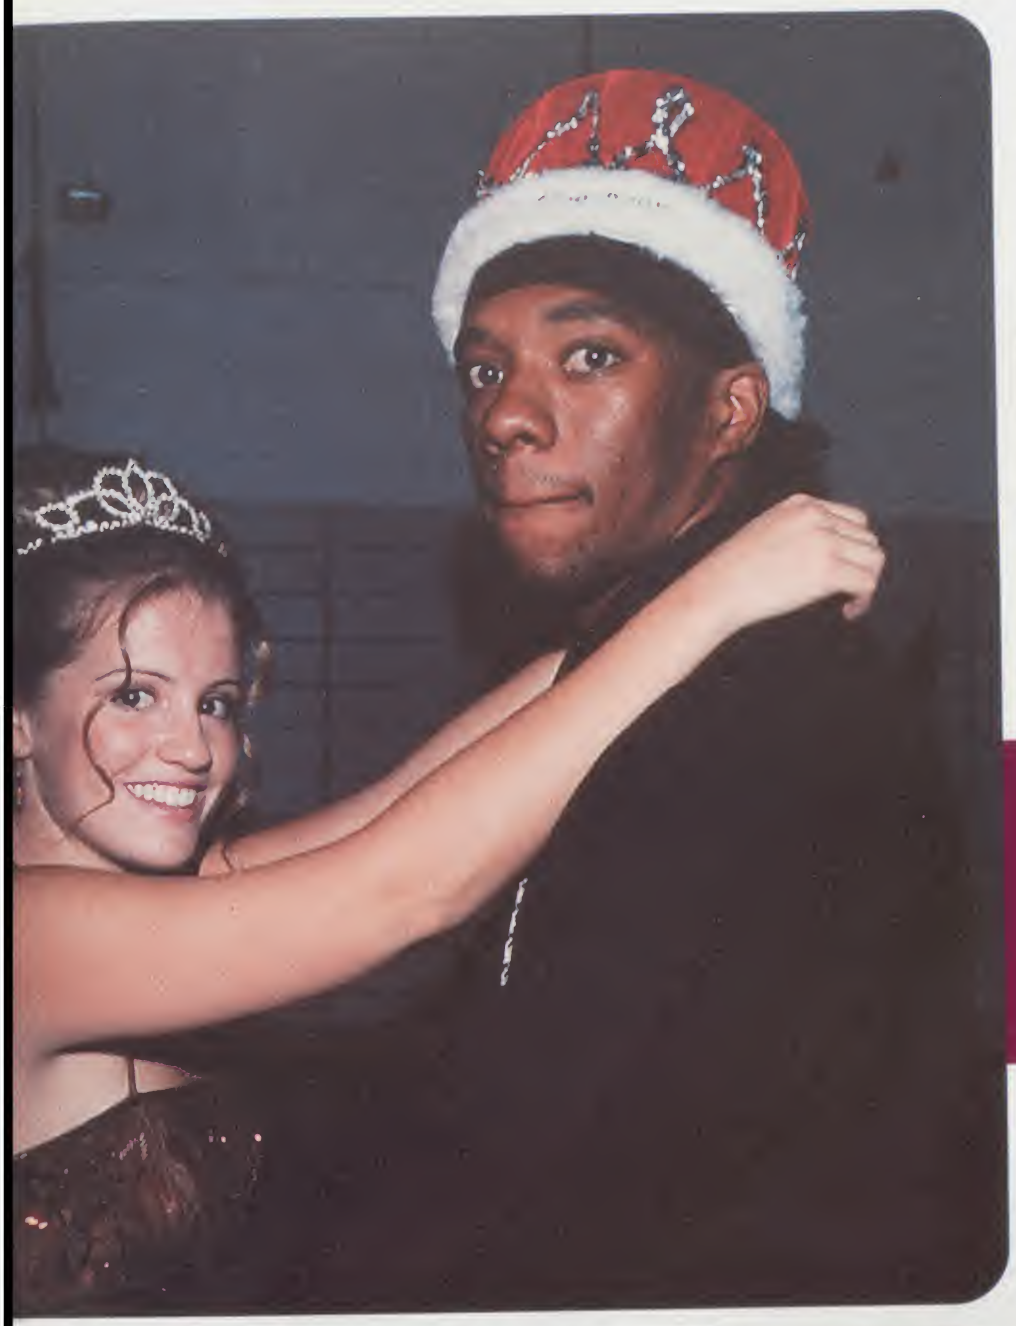
Left: Clutching flowers and wearing their graduation robes, these two friends look forward to a new start at college. However, Lincy Kunnacherril (left) and Fyeqa Sheikh will always have this picture to remember their time spent at Niles West.

Right: What could be better than celebrating your seventeenth birthday with the entire school on such a special night? Just ask Krissy Tracey ('04). Looks like she was having a great time being the birthday girl.
Below: Nickolas Tarzian ('04) and Elena Boiarskia ('04) take a break from dancing to enjoy the refreshments.

Homecoming

"A Night in My Kind of Town"

After a hard fought and disappointing loss to Maine South on Friday, the dance on Saturday night lifted everyone's spirits. Students walking in were dazzled by the colorful dresses and the Chicago skyline in the background. The decorations this year were so eye-catching and realistic that it almost felt like a real night in the city. This is also the first year that the Homecoming committee hired a radio station DJ. Homecoming 2003 wasn't just an excuse to dress up and look nice; it was a night to remember.



Left: Homecoming King Walter Mendenhall ('04) and Queen Kiki Noonan ('04) share a special dance in the spotlight. This was the first year that the ballots for the king and queen were counted by a machine rather than by hand.
Below: These guys are looking pretty happy. Nael Shehade ('04) and Omar Salem ('04) look like they can't wait to get back to the dance floor.

Above: What a bunch of party animals! Marc Klein ('05), Mickey Noonan ('04), and Marty Gould ('05) jumped at the chance to form their own little conga line.

Right: Albert Tamondong ('04) jumps up with pride as the Filipino Club is announced for their award winning float. Below: Holding his head up high and grinning, Walter Mendenhall ('04) prepares to walk the red carpet as his name echoes throughout the gym.

Now This is Chicago!

Pep Assembly and Parade

Each year you see it from a different angle and each year that angle gets closer and closer. The Niles West Homecoming Assembly is a special time when all students seem to blend together into the red and white background. At times the noise level can be incredible; at other times, you can here a pin drop. After the assembly, the parade is a a chance for everyone to look forward to the rest of the weekend.

Left: Creative captain Elena Dimoulis ('04) shows off her attire and dance moves. She helped design the squad's shirts and choreograph the dance.

Below: Filipino Club asks Niles West if they "got pride?" The club won first place in the parade float contest earlier that afternoon.

Above: These German Club members Julie Barker ('05), and Sophia Harris ('05) say "Moooo!" to the camera while taking a quick picture with their little cow friend. Left: Homecoming King and Queen Walter Mendenhall ('04) and Kiki Noonan ('04) cruise together in the parade in a red and white '76 Cadillac.

Below: Dr. Richard Decoster, who was selected as NHS's "most influential teacher", delivers a speech to the members. His speech was an inspirational one, as he talked about how one of his own high school teachers still has an impact on his teaching. Right: Amy Madhiwala, as Officer at Large, speaks in front of the inductees and their families. She explains how National Honor Society helps to complete the transition from a teenager attending high school to a successful college student .

The Top of the Class

National Honor Society

National Honor Society is more than just a room full of intellectually advanced students. Between food drives, spring service projects, and after-school tutoring in the IRC, it is obvious that NHS members strive not only for academic excellence, but for the betterment of their community. National Honor Society represents a group of motivated students who are gifted with the ability to care about their grades while worrying about the less-fortunate members of the community. Perhaps these reasons are why their reputation stands as the 'top of the class'.

Left: Standing together with their candles lit, the inductees recite a pledge to uphold the high standards of the National Honor Society. This pledge is taken by NHS members throughout the nation, and is a tradition for the NHS Induction.

Top: Linda Rusak happily shakes the hand of Mrs. Dale Voegler as she is presented with her official National Honor Society pin. Although being accepted into NHS is a great honor, the membership pin is a tangible reward for the members' success.

Above: It is obvious by the enthusiastic smiles on these NHS members' faces that their four years of academic and extracurricular excellence has paid off. With their candles blown out, they take a moment to congratulate each other.

Right: William Kelly ('06) recited poetry by Tupac Shakur, the late rapper. His words seemed to invoke a feeling of familiarity within the students as many can relate to discrimination. Below: Kiki Noonan ('04) and Patrick Ryan ('05) played the parents of Erin Finnicum ('04) as she tried to persuade them to be more tolerant of her African American friend. Finnicum wanted her family to see that stereotypical ideas distract people from seeing a person's real identity.

Equality

...King's Dream Continues

"I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but the content of their character." As the lights dimmed and the music played, these words by Martin Luther King Junior became a reality once again at Niles West. The students portrayed various situations in which prejudice is apparent; some read poetry of their own creation, some that of others. The presentation was designed to show all of us how there is still work to be done to fulfill Dr. King's dream, and it is up to all of us to do it.

Left: Valerie Papillon ('05) helped heighten the audience's awareness of foul language used at Niles West by displaying offensive words such as "redneck" and then disposing of them.
Below: "I think that the ceremony was important because it made people think about the words they use in real life." - Christie Fox ('05)

Above: Remel Cuevo ('05) realized that physical differences are not true base of character. Instead, he learned to accept Michael Long ('04), regardless of his differences, and to see how diversity is a strength.

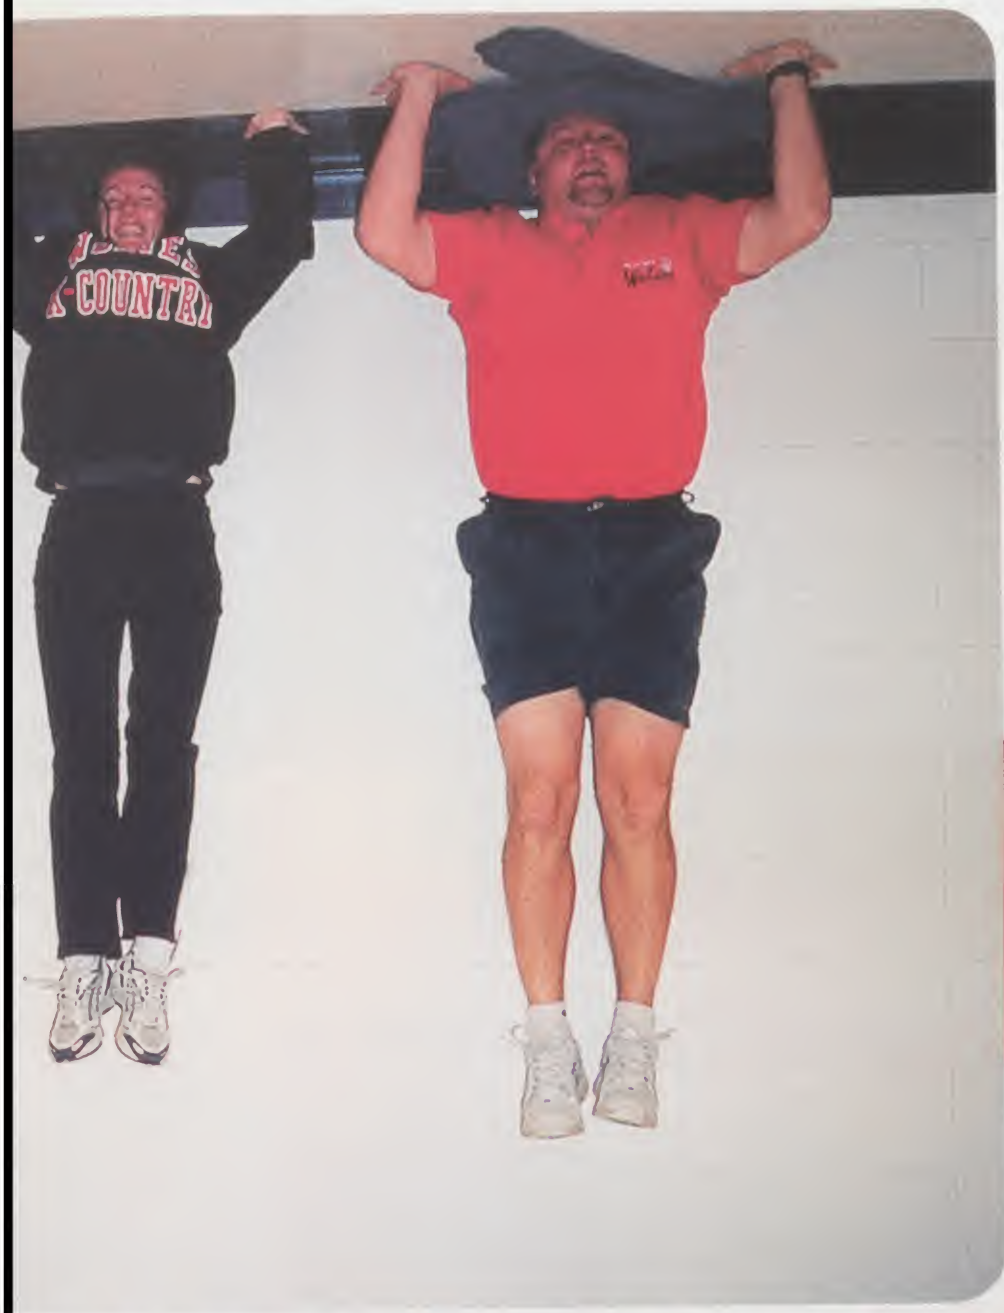
Above: Junelle Bennett ('05) tried to just be herself in order to show the Smith family that she was no different than they.
Left: Amy Jacob ('06) read a story to her class about how we are too quick to judge others. Her class gasped in reaction to the events in the tale.

Right: Frau Jacobs shows us her moves from her night job at Club Deutsch.
Below: Watch out gymnastics! Here comes Mr. Konsewicz showing off his forward rolls. The new closed hallway is a perfect spot for him to practice his talent.

Hidden Talents

uncovered, unleashed, uncensored

What do students and teachers at Niles West have in common? You might think not much, but secretly they all have special hidden talents. Sneaking around offices and hallways, we have caught students and teachers in the act, revealing their deepest secrets. From magical powers to crazy dance moves, we have uncovered talents you would never expect to see at Niles West. I think we have answered the question, "What do teachers and students do at Niles West during their free time?"



Left: Is this picture really upside down? Are they standing on their heads, or just jumping really high? We may never know, but these physical education teachers sure are multi-talented.
Below: Webby's small size allows him to go deep into a car's engine. He excels at his special talent of fixing up cars.

Left: What does Mr. Grossman have that we don't? Supermind powers! Watch as he levitates a pencil with ease.

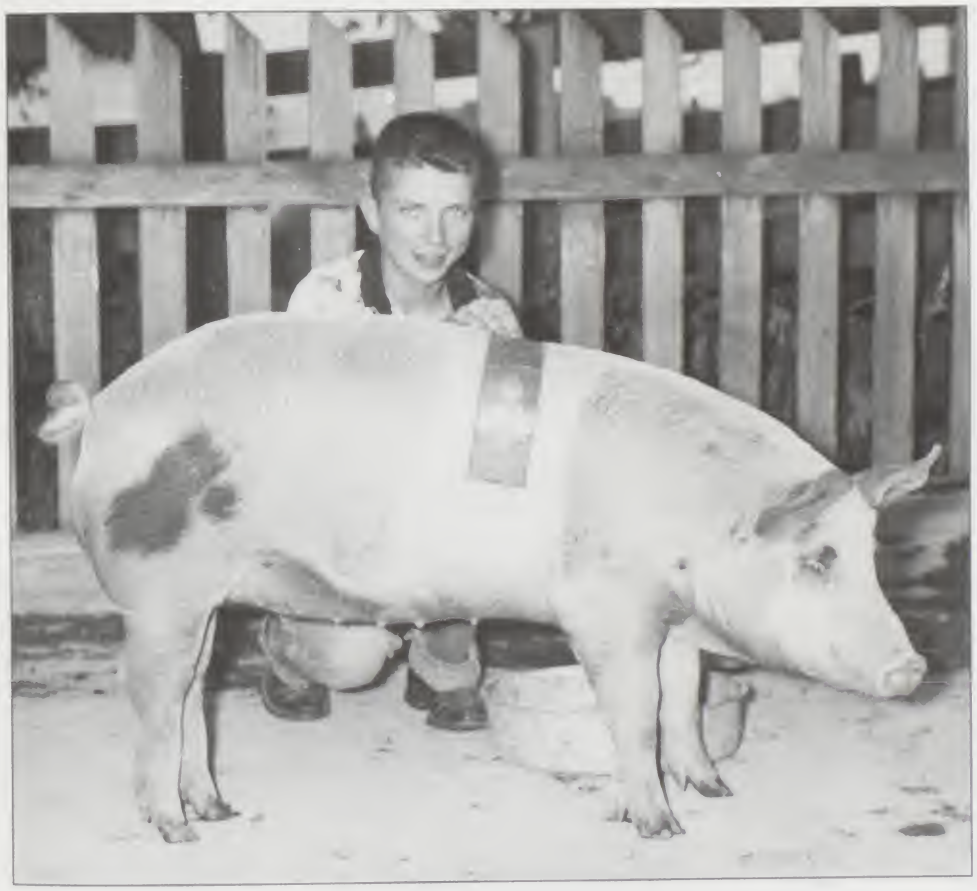
Teacher's Pets

Take a bite out of crime

Behind every teacher, there is a teacher's pet. No, not the brown-nosing kind, but the furry kind. Luckily for these teachers, their furry little friends don't whine or complain about grades; on the contrary, these pets offer unconditional comfort. Whether they are man's best friend or have nine lives, they all receive an "A+" in their owner's grade books.



Far Above: Paws VanAlstin takes a break from a dog's hard life to lie down and dream of playing soccer.
Above: Webby's small size helped him to sneak past security and get into the principal's office, where he listens to some classic music on the jukebox.
Left: Mr. Meskel still has that blue ribbon hanging in his office from when he was 14. His pig was the grand champion of the Fayette County Fair.

IOWA

HOW arts?

Rhythm of Life

Band

The invigorating music, the great friendships, and the experiences of a lifetime are not the only things students in band achieve. Band members have the power to capture the audience's emotions and take them on a musical journey. This year, the Concert Band, the Symphonic Band, and the Symphonic Wind Ensemble had the opportunity to travel to Florida and perform for audiences at Universal Studios. Another opportunity arose at the winter concert, when Sean O'Laughlin, the composer of some of the music played during the concert, came to guest conduct. Opportunities like this can only be experienced through the band program.

Above: Jackie King's ('06) and Nerissa Guimary's ('06) fingers fly as they play a run on their clarinets.
Right: Keeping the beat is one of the most important jobs of the band. Timothy Massoth ('07) and Mark Ramos ('07) work hard to keep time.

Left: "Clarinets are the violins of the band," says Mr. William Koch, Director of Bands. Lauren Silverman ('04), Monique Murphy ('04), and Karlene Gordula ('04) make their clarinets sound just as musical as any violin.

Above: Some people think that the conductor controls the band, but really it's the tuba. This tuba player, Cindy Wisniewski ('04), takes her job very seriously.

"Being in band has provided me with long lasting friendships that have made me a more complete person."
Karlene Gordula ('04)

"Being in band is a great experience, not only to play challenging music, but also to learn about life, through 'honor, commitment, and respect.'

"When I first walked into the band room, I only knew the people who went to my junior high; but I was able to quickly make new friends because we all had music in common."
Alicia Ochoa ('07)

MOTOWN
and Pop 'N Rock

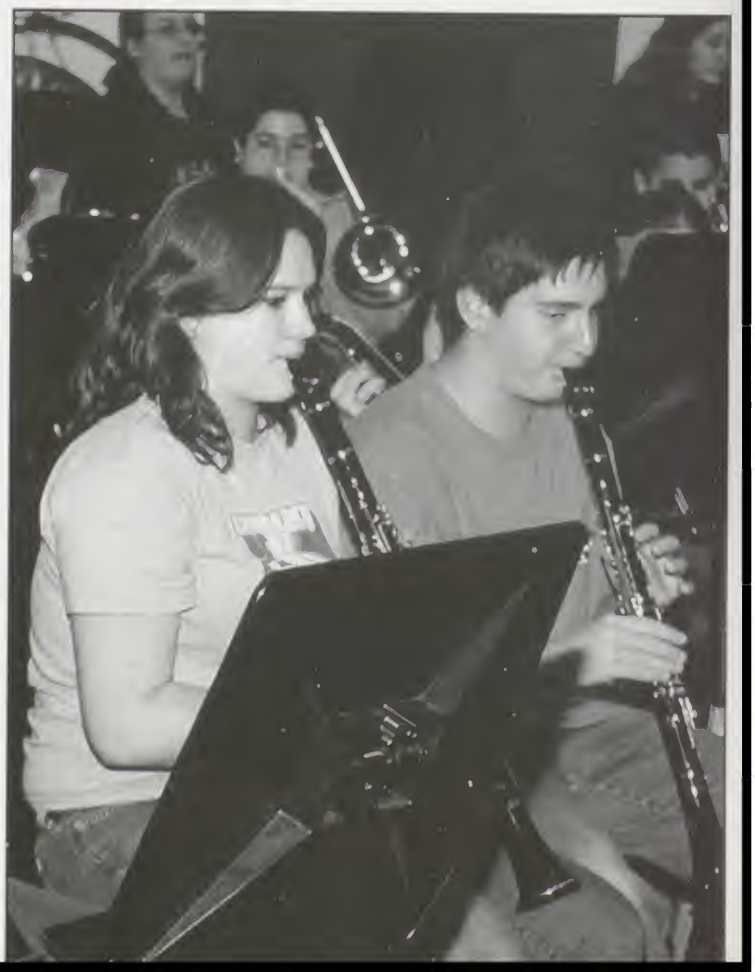
Two afternoons a week, anyone outside Niles West could hear the Marching Band playing various songs related to this year's theme of "Motown." All this practice led to their excellent perfomances at every home football game, which helped bring school spirit and a sense of fun to the games.

The 56 students who participated in Pop 'N Rock had a great time playing at the basketball games. Their Wednesday afternoon practices culminated in an outstanding performance at the annual Jazz Night, "Just For The Fun of It." The Pasta 'N Pops concert was a spectacular ending to their season.

Below: With sore backs from marching around the track with their heavy drums, the percussionists make sure to stay on time and keep in step.

Right: "I get around, 'round, 'round, 'round. I get around!" Jessica Candea ('07) and Alexander Warso ('07) really enjoy playing their clarinets to this song.

Above: Every Wednesday, Ms. Katherine Spritzer takes time out of her busy week of being a secretary to conduct the Pop N' Rock pep band.



Left: As the rest of the Marching Band awaits their turn to play, the drumline beats out a fantastic solo during a music break in the song, "I Heard it Through the Grapevine."

Above: Carolynn Witt ('05) concentrates hard to perfect her euphonium playing skills. After changing instruments three times, she has finally found something she truly enjoys...or has she?

"The forms [in Marching Band] are intricate and cleverly formed...Imagine amoeba shapes with pin point positions evenly spaced around the shape–then move that formation, rotate it or completely change it while on the move and playing music."
–Katherine Spritzer

"I like how light the environment is. Everyone's having fun and talking with friends, but we're still getting our work done."
– Heather Garrity ('05)

"Because of Marching Band and Pop 'N Rock, I've made friends I wouldn't have made otherwise."
– Jessica Lipscomb ('06)

Niles West

Cambridge Singers

When you're feeling down and lonely and in the mood for some quality music, come see the Niles West Choir. Different students become involved in the choir department because they all share a love of music. These students sing their hearts out daily in class and then put on an excellent show for the fall, winter and spring concerts. Choraliers, Concert Choir, Chamber Choir, and Master Singers all perform a variety of songs separately but come together at the end of each concert for one huge finale. Besides performing during the seasons, whenever the school needs a group of talented voices, the Niles West Choir is ready to go.

Below: At the 2003 Niles West Fall performance, Jarrett Room ('04) and Michael Budzik ('04) sing their hearts out. These two Master Singers have been involved with the choir department since their freshman year.

Above: Ms. Paula Bachman directs the Niles West Choraliers as they sing before the crowd for their first high school concert experience.

Right: Instead of being accompanied by only a piano, the talented Niles West band and orchestra join the choir show.

Left: These students are at the top of their game. Being a Master Singer is a great honor. Singing the most difficult songs and pulling them off with tremendous passion is what Master Singers is all about.

"Being in choir for four years made me realize that it's not how loud or high you sing that matters, it's how well your voice blends with all the other voices."
Loreen Targos ('04)

"I love being in choir. It's a lot of fun and it really gives me a chance to express myself."
Elizabeth Stephens ('05)

"Going to choir class is so relaxing during such a stressful day at school. Singing makes my day!"

Classical

Niles West Orchestra

Orchestra officially began earlier than usual this year by going on a trip to Europe over summer vacation. The students got the chance to see many unique and unusual places. It is no wonder that Sharon Chang, Rudra Sinharoy, and Lauren Silverman made All State IMEA. During the school year, the Orchestra students received additional practice through visits by many professional groups including a former Chicago Symphony musician. The students also help community members through public service. At every one of their concerts, they collect money for either the Make-A-Wish Foundation or the Food Pantry. This year, they collected enough money to buy twenty-two turkeys for Thanksgiving. Mr. Steven Katz, Director of the Orchestra, is always open to taking in new members. Obviously, they are a great group of students and have a lot to offer.

Below: Rachel Ko ('07), Sul Lee ('06), and Amanda Merikas ('06) take a break from playing their cellos. Even though it looks like they're sleeping, they are probably concentrating very hard on what to do.

Above: The key to being a good musician is concentration. Katarzyna Chmiel ('06) and Julie Fry ('05) focus only on their music while practicing before a concert.

Right: Sharon Chang ('04) has been a great asset to the orchestra. She stands up durings the concert to receive recognition for her accomplishments over the past four years.

"Being involved in Orchestra for the past four years really made me realize the impact music can have on someone's life. It's also a lot of fun."
-Ajitha Kaimal ('04)

"Music has been a part of my life since I was very young. Being a part of the Niles West Orchestra has enhanced my love for music – a, thing which I hope to keep in all my life."
-Priyanka Kalapurayil ('05)

"We are very lucky to continue to have talent at school. Year in and year out, it's amazing how much beautiful music we can create."
-Mr. Steven Katz

Student Senate and Union

Go into room 2425 any Monday, mods 14-16, and you'll see where all the social intricacies of the school begin. The relaxed atmosphere of Student Union makes the meetings fun for all students involved. Student Union plans Spirit Week and all of the school assemblies. This year, members raised $120 and are planning on using it to buy gifts for underprivileged families. While Union is more concerned with the social aspect, Student Senate deals with student policy. The main reason certain policies have passed is because Student Senate takes it upon themselves to make sure Niles West's rules and regulations are fair to the entire student body.

Student Senate: Front: Kinnari Patel, Nitasha Kassam, Eleanor Itzkow, Peter Dinges, Mr. Chris Schwarz 2nd: Maria Bura, Roshani Sheth Back: Mallinalli Castro, Lauren Perzov, Joshua Siroko

Despite the fact that it looks like she is working on a science project, Kathleen Bolano ('05) is hard at work helping organize the many activities that go on around our school.

Emilia Antezana ('05) starts off the Student Union meeting by letting everyone know what will be discussed. Today's topic: the Student Union service projects which, this year, was selling taffy apples to students and wrapping gifts for underprivileged kids.

Peter Dinges ('04), Joshua Siroko ('07), and Eleanor Itzkow ('05) listen intently as things like rules around the school are discussed. Student Senate meets Fridays, Mods 14-16, in room 2190.

"Senate gives you a chance to voice your opinion on what you don't like about Niles West and how you want to change it."
Nitasha Kassam ('06)

"All of our officers are underclassmen so we're still getting the hang of things, but luckily, they will all be back next year."
Ms. Donnelly

"Senate's focus is on making sure students have a good time in school with many privileges"
Kinnari Patel ('06)

Cabinet

Fund Raisers, Meetings, and Fun, Oh My!

Where are you mods 14-16? If you're not at a Cabinet meeting, you should be. Every Thursday, students representing every grade level meet with their class officers to discuss various ways of raising money to help fund their class projects. As freshmen and sophomores, cabinet members are responsible for raising enough money to be used junior year. Junior Cabinet uses that money to plan senior prom. Senior Cabinet buys the senior class gift. These respected students care about making a difference in their school.

Here is the senior class president Eunice An in her office concentrating hard on confidential cabinet work. She has been president for two years now and knows the ropes well.

"This is my second year as an officer, and I have to say that it is a lot of hard work, but it all pays off in the end. That's Nautical!"
- Jessica Patera ('04)

"It's a wonderful club. We do a lot and we have tons of fun. I look forward to group meetings esspeciallyfor planning an unforgetable prom."
- Swati Patel ('05)

"Senior Cabinet Rules! I really like the feeling of helping out the school. It's a good break from going to the cafe everyday."
- Sarah Oline ('04)

Metamorphoses

Fall Play

The Niles West Theatre has amazed us yet again. This year's fall play, Metamorphosis, has definitely proved to be the most creative. Metamorphosis tells the story of many different Greek myths. However, one of the most memorable myths is that of Midas and Silenus. Midas is rewarded a power to turn things into gold for taking care of a humorous drunk, Silenus. Unfortunately, the gift that he receives proves to be a burden, not a reward: by mistake he touches his daughter, instantly turning her into gold. Desperate to find a way to rid himself of this power, he finds out that the only way to restore everything would be to go to an enchanted pool of water. He sets off for his long journey, realizing that gold is not everything.

Below: Michael Budzic ('04) as King Midas desires to live forever. Luckily for him, Bacchus' assistant, played by Pamela Wilcox ('05) knows the secret to make his desire a reality.

Above: It's story time! The laundresses (Suzanne Meyerowitz '04, Sima Kalmens '06, and Anne LaManna ('04) share Greek myths while they wash laundry at the pool's edge.

Right: As narrator Molly Levine ('05) introduces this scene, Aphrodite, played by Lily Stephens ('05), watches Allen Potekin ('05), as Poseidon, lurking around in the water.

Left: As fate awaits these two lovers, Ceyx, played by E.J. Ladlad ('04) and Alcyone, portrayed by Samantha Meron ('04), look deeply into each other's eyes, not knowing that soon they will be turned into lovebirds.

Above: Philemon, played by George Kinas ('04) and Nicole Klemens ('04) as Baucis prepare for the fulfillment of their wish to die along side each other.

"This play is definitely unlike anything Niles West has ever done before."
-Nicole Klemens ('04)

"Metamorphoses was amazing. It was probably the most challenging show ever done at Niles West, but overall, it was a lot of fun."
-David Kolen ('06)

"The thing that separated this show from the rest was the enormous amount of energy and effort that was put into every performance."
-Jake Saleh ('06)

Alexander and the Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day

Children's Play

Tripping on his skateboard, having no toy in his cereal box, and eating lima beans for dinner are just a few of the bad things that happened to Alexander in "Alexander and the Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day." Three different companies, the Terribles, Horribles, and the No Goods, performed a rendition of Judith Viorst's popular children's book for children and their parents.

Alexander's bad luck spread throughout the entire day. Waking up late was the first sign to Alexander that the day was going to be a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad one. From there, things just got worse and worse. He was made fun of by his friends, pushed in the mud, got car sick, and a dozen other things made him want to move to Australia. But when the day ended and Alexander was about to be tucked into bed, his mother made him realize that some days come like that, but tomorrow will be better.

Below: Alexander (Alex Tarzian '06) wishes he and his cavity could disappear as he sits in the dentist chair.

Above: Elizabeth Brodsky ('05) sings solo after Alexander's (Alex Tarzian '06) obnoxious behavior forces him to leave the performance.

"It was great participating in the show because it's one of the last chances to be a kid before you lose your childhood to the abysmal world of adulthood."
– Joseph Miller ('06)

"It was the first show where I had to sing by myself. It was very nerve-wracking, but it was a fun experience."
–Lev Kalmens ('05)

"It was great because we got to travel to different junior highs and perform for them, giving them a taste of Niles West Theater."
– Alan Potekin ('05)

The Comedy of Errors

Winter Play

"To be, or not to be?" No, wrong play. But that does not mean the Niles West Thespians did not do a superb job performing Shakespeare at his best. "The Comedy of Errors" is an exciting, fast-paced play that keeps the audience laughing heartily throughout the entire performance. The play opens with Egeon, a merchant of Syracuse, who is condemned to death for violating a ban against travel between two rival cities. Unbeknownst to him, one of his sons, Antipholus of Syracuse (along with his slave Dromeo of Syracuse), is in Ephesus on a visitation as well. However, Egeon is not the only man in the dark. Antipholus of Syracuse is unaware that he has an identical twin brother, Antipholus of Ephesus, living in the very city which he is visiting. And, sure enough, Antipholus of Ephesus has a slave, Dromeo of Ephesus, who is the identical twin brother of Dromeo of Syracuse. So what comes out of this dysfunctional family? Confusion, chaos, and a lot of comedy.

Right: The local townspeople join together and act out Egeon's life story, including his journeys, adventures, and eventual shipwreck.

Above: A performer looking for payment will receive none from Antipholus of Ephesus (Michael Budzik '04), since he is too busy listening to a proposition from Angelo (Michael Ardashnikov '05).

Right: George Kinas ('05) insists that the law must be upheld under every circumstance, no matter who the offender is. Unfortunately for Egeon (Alan Potekin '05), the punishment for his offense is death.

Above: In the traditional style of Shakespeare, Antipholus of Syracuse expresses his true feelings of love to Luciana. Although "The Comedy of Errors" is filled with laughter, there are many romantic scenes as well.

"This show really pushed my limits as an actor. It was an enjoyable and a very challenging experience for us all."
-Ingrid Kocjan ('04)

"Performing Shakespeare really broadened my perspective on the art of theatre and the strength of words."
-Alan Potekin ('05)

"Considering I usually play a character in their twenties, the fact that I played a nun in "The Comedy of Errors" was a nice change for me!"
-Sandra Israel ('04)

Right: Step, step, and pose. Tina Rodvong ('04) pauses for a moment so everyone can take in the bold design of her custom-made shirt.
Below: Erica Locklund ('06), Lace Franks ('03), and Kendra Beedle ('06) smile sweetly as the audience admires the creativity and hard work it took to make those shiny shirts.

Orchesis

Body Language

This year's show spanned a wide variety of music and dance styles. From a solo on "pointe" to a Madonna number with a Western flair, this group showed their diverse abilities. The majority of the dances in the show were choreographed by the company members themselves. All of the choreographers are required to present their dances in front of the company before they make it to the stage. The members also have the privilege of working with professional choreographers. Depending on when the choreographers are available, the members must learn and perfect a couple of dances just one week before the show. After many long hours of practice, the show arrived. Senior Samantha Rosati said, "There is nothing more exciting than dancing on stage. After four amazing years, it's my turn to say 'Curtain Call.'"

Bottom: Linda Lim ('05) and Eunice Yi ('06) get down to the beat of Jennelyn Noche's "Miss Jade" choreography. It's as clear as black and white; these girls have talent.

Left: Changing up the pace, the company dances to a different style to professional choreographer Roberta Cassidy's lyrical piece. For the seniors, it's a "Time to say Good-bye."

Above: The show isn't just hip-hop dances. Monica Castillo ('04) demonstrates her grace during her solo, "The Memories."

"Orchesis has given me the opportunity to learn different styles of dance that I would not usually be exposed to. It's been an extremely rewarding experience and I couldn't have asked for a better group to work with."
-Monica Castillo ('04)

"I have been dancing for as long as I can remember but I have never enjoyed is or have had as much fun doing it as I have the past four years on Orchesis."
-Elena Dimoulis ('04)

"So much time and hard work is put into the show, but in the end nothing can compare to the feeling you get when you're on stage. These past three years have flown by, but I know I will remember them for the rest of my life."
-Kristen Fleming ('05)

Writing the West Word

Deadlines, late nights, last-minute copy editing–the staff of West Word executes each essential element to produce a school paper that has won top honors for the past several years. The dedicated reporters will do anything to bring the student body the latest news, controversial topic, or scandalous school event.

But, as much as West Word is a work-driven, news-producing team, it is also a community in which each member is crucial in creating the final product. From the photographers to the staff writers, from the business manager to the cartoonist, each staffer must put in tireless effort until the "bitter end."

- - Amy Madhiwala ('04)

Above: Lauren Zeinfeld ('04) asks for advice from her fellow staffer, Sabrina Madrigal ('04). Sabrina is always eager to lend a helping hand, so don't be afraid to ask.
Right: What is Adair Bayatpour ('04) doing? We may never know, but whatever it is it must be important.

"The past three years on West Word have been worthwhile, enjoyable, and I'll always remember the late nights. Long live Aunt Jan's brownies and MGC!"
– Jessica Rainey ('04)

"West Word has greatly improved my life and has given me the opportunity to learn more about people around me and especially myself!"
– Lauren Zeinfeld ('04)

"Even though we deal with hectic late nights, close deadlines, and last minute interviews, in the end, all the effort is worth it."
– Amy Madhiwala ('04)

Spectrum

The Webby Press

Yearbooks are often gateways to the past; a few years from now, you might look back and remember friends, activities, and teachers you never wanted to forget. You might laugh at the wonderful memories, you might cringe at your freshman year picture–you might even long for the friendships you enjoyed at Niles West. These emotions, coupled with these memories, will be, in large part, because of your yearbook.

Within the Spectrum staff, we are creating memories, too. Between yearbook training camp at Benedictine University over the summer, participating in the breast cancer walk, and just laughing over general silliness and stress, yearbook isn't only about snapshots and late-nights. Of course, a 250-page yearbook isn't created overnight. But it's the journey of getting there–the copies, captions, and cropping–that really makes being on the Spectrum staff so special.

Below: Samantha Rosati ('04) and Sarah Oline ('04) are so tired from looking for Webby, they don't even notice him sleeping right next to them.

At yearbook camp, one of the instructors taught the yearbook staff the "correct" way to shake hands, the "Webby Press." All you have to do is touch the web area between your index finger and thumb to the same part of the other person's hand.

"Yearbook was a great experience; not only do you get to help record your school's history, you are also there to help create it. From yearbook camp to deadlines, it was all a lot of fun.
-Stephanie Persaud ('04)"

"The best part of yearbook this year was developing a close relationship with Webby. We dated for a little while; after he went to homecoming with Omar Salem though...well, that was the end of our 'romance.'

Left: If he had his tongue out, Jarryd Loyd ('04) would definitely be mistaken for Michael Jordan. Jarryd drives to the basket to shoot an acrobatic lay-up.
Bottom: A look of awe passes over the crowd as Walter Mendenhall ('04) looks for an open teammate. This will most likely be another game winning play.

Coach Dave Genis gives his starters some last minute advice before the tip-off. Everyone is closely listening, except Brian Ross ('04) and Coach Eric Lueder, who seem to have found something quite humorous in the game's offense.

"It's been a great season. We're doing really well and I'm looking forward to next year."

Hailee Sullivan

"This year was a lot of fun and the whole team worked really hard at every practice. All the players worked together really well and each day I looked forward to going to practice."

"Being on this same gymnastics team when I was in high school made me want to come back and help the team learn new tricks and get better. I love coaching this team; they're a great group of girls."

Coach Renee

"I like gymnastics because you learn so many things about body control and overcoming your fears. Plus, the practices and meets are so fun and half the kids on the team are crazy."

Virginia Palmer

Right: Annette Danilowski ('06) wonders why there's a bag under her while she flies high above the ground doing a standing back flip.

Front: Rebecca Birger, Selina Phan, Lauren Kucha 2nd: Valerie Krynski, Jill Klein, Tiffany Moy, Sandra Gettes, Amanda Sierra, Sadie Rothstein, Brandy Trafman, Linda Pisula 3rd: Caitlin Scheib, Chelsea Sher, Erica Lockland, Coach Michael Troop, Coach Pam Foerch, Coach Adrian Batista, Annette Danilowski, Yvonne Palmer, Jessica Anderson Back: Anneliese Opfer, Margaret Yang, Sarah Berkley, Christina Earle, Virginia Palmer, Natalie Palmer, Hydei Kim, Jade Daugherty

Valerie Krynski ('04) shows just how strong her legs are by doing this move on the beam. She lowers herself down on one leg into a sitting position, and then stands up again.

Far left: Chelsea Sher ('04) demonstrates tremendous flexibility and balance while doing this pose on the beam in the "A Star is Born" invite.
Left: Mike Troop, one of the coaches, stands near the vault to make sure Christina Earle ('05) doesn't hurt herself while warming up her quarter-on, three quarter-off vault for regionals.
Below: It may look like Jessica Anderson ('05) is falling, but actually, she's just about to catch the bar. She's doing a straddle-cut-catch, which is a release move on the uneven bars.

Record 7-2

Girls' Gymnastics

Wow, look at that form! With toes pointed and arms barely bent, Yvonne Palmer ('05) successfully attempts a back uprise in warm-ups for regionals.

Erica Lockland ('06) contorts her body while doing a back walkover on the beam during warm-ups for a meet. How does she do it?

"The excellence in the diving program has been proven by the fact that we have had the maximum two state qualifiers for the last seven years. Not too many schools in our conference can say the same."

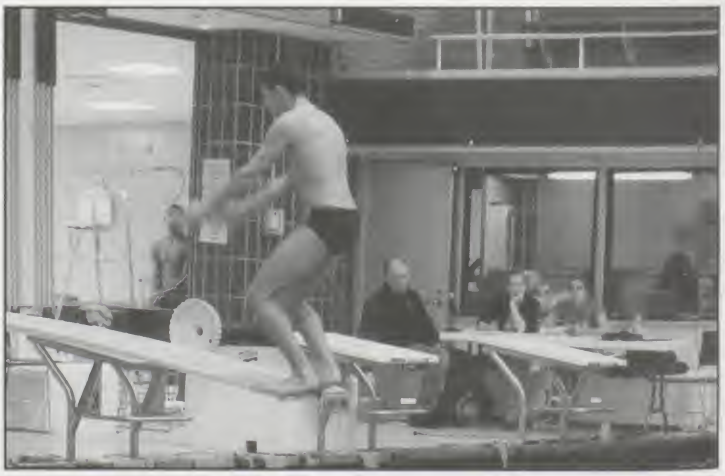
Coach Louis Torres

"I have been on different sports and they are nothing like this. The closeness reflects our performance, and "Coach" is great."

Jean Klos ('05)

Right: Oh, help me! Savannah Eng ('06) seems to be praying to help her get through her back somersault. Don't worry Savannah, you'll be fine.

A.J. Earnst ('07) flies through the air with the greatest of ease, without a trapeze. He executes his reverse dive not only with ease, but with poise, too.



Look at that muscle! Jesse Leftkowitz ('06) uses every muscle he has to push the board down for his back one-and a-half.

Below: Senior veteran Adrian Lovera springs from the board, sending both him and the board soaring. He needs all of the height he can get to complete his two-and a-half pike.
Left: With her hair flying everywhere, Virginia Palmer ('05) holds onto her legs with all her might as she does her inward one-and a-half. Uh, oh Virginia... remember to point your toes!

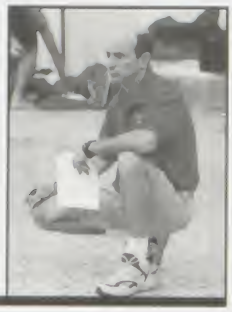
Girls' and Boys' Diving

Although Coach Torres looks as if he's in daze watching Sadie Rothstein ('07) do her back dive, he's probably just concentrating really hard on what score to give her. Right...

It's a bird! No, it's a plane! No, it's Petros Sideropolous ('06) doing his front dive with a half twist. You really do learn how to fly in diving.

"This year was one of the best in Niles West Swim Team history. The senior class has been a remarkably dedicated and inspirational group. It's been a pleasure to coach all of them."



Coach Keith MacDonald

"Being on the varsity team for 4 years was one of the hardest things I've ever done. Having practice before and after school isn't easy, but all the hard work paid off. Many of the varsity members and I plan on making it to state and showing everyone how good we are."

Matthew Torres ('04)

Far Right: So that's how Alex Babin ('04) wins all those races! Just look at that amazing start! Showing off his lightning reactions, he makes it in the water before any of the other swimmers take their marks.
Right: Pull! Pull! Pull! Junior Brad Cohn ('05) glides through the water and reaches for the finish! Little does he know that he will out touch his opponent.

Front: Ben Eng, Boris Dabachink, Evan Roberts, Serge Ginels, Lan Dam Second: Gregory Schaffrath, Scott Burman, Kevin Belwierz, Zach Jarosz, Peter Tabatt, Jon Cagadas Third: Manager Heather Benson, Peter Gajda, Petro Sididoupolous, Kris Kinslow, West Current, A.J Ernst, Jesse Lefkowitz, Avi Gahndi, Joann Bialobrzewski Forth: Coach Matt Boss, Coach Dan Vander Jeugdt, Adrian Lovera, Alex Babin, Paul Shaggy Bialobrzewski, Mike Grossman, Matt Torres, Coach Kieth MacDonald, Coach Louis Torres Fifth: Ian Brauchli, Jack Targos, Greg Chmiel, Ivo Serviovic, Garth Klos, Dan Zacharach, Paul Drodz, Brad Cohn

Jack Targos ('06) doesn't break a sweat as he comes flying into the wall at top speed. He moves his arms, his legs kick and he lets his foosh fly...and that's how you win a race!

Left: Even with all that hair in his face, Jon Cagadas ('07) still manages to rock the race. By rotating his shoulders and grabbing all that deep water, Jon demonstrates the true art of the backstroke.
Below: The boys eagerly await their future races. While silently watching diving, they quietly take themselves through their race.

Ivo Servioic ('06) launches himself into the water. Getting good distance from the block is essential to a good start, and ultimately, a phenomenal time.

Boris Dabachink ('07) pulls himself through the water. The 100 Breaststroke isn't an easy race. Arms and legs get tired very easily with this stroke, but Boris does a good job fighting the pain.

"My personal motivation is the desire to succeed and be one of the best wrestlers in state."

Jack Gould ('04)

"Wrestling is 75% mental strength and only 25% physical strength. You can be the strongest guy in the world but if it is not there mentally, you won't be very successful."

Vlad Bezuyevskiy ('04)

Far right: As the meet is ready to begin, the three captains, Jack Gould ('04), Martin Gould ('05) and Vlad Bezuyevskiy ('04) discuss the rules with the referee.
Right: Jack Gould ('04) pounds down his opponent with brute force. Hang in there! Only a few more seconds left.

During a meet against Evanston High School, the Niles West wrestler, Bernhard Ralph, and the rest of his team memebers watch the last match of the night.

Being a wrestler requires not only tremendous strength, but the ability to carry it out during their six minute match. On the team for only a year, newcomer Lewis Hutchinson ('05) demonstrates this during his time to shine.

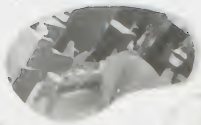
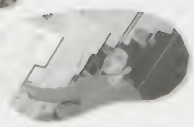
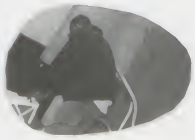
Spaish Honor

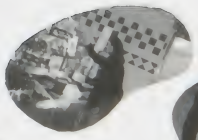
WYSE

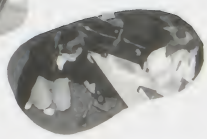


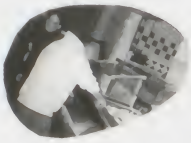


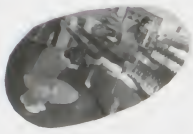


Being a junior isn't easy, especially when you are forced to search for Webby in all the backrooms and basements of the school. It's scary, but somebody has to do it!







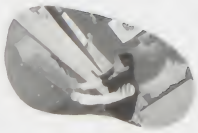


Not to be forgotten, the sophomores headed to the cafeteria to search for their furry friend. String cheese wrappers were found everywhere. Too bad they didn't check the cookie rack!

The class of 2007, wanting to contribute, looked for the missing wolf all over the athletic wing. They even looked for him in the pool! All they found were tiny footprints...

Everyone at Niles West looked for Webby in every conceivable location. They looked up, down, all around and still he was nowhere to be found! With tension building, a school-wide search was put into effect.

Taking the lead, the seniors searched every classroom in which they'd studied over the last four years. They searched all day and all night but still found nothing. Although Webby was still missing, hopes remained high.



Meanwhile, our new principal, Dale Vogler searched the main office. She'd never met Webby but eagerly helped in the search. Suddenly, she found him. They had a long discussion about running away and soon became good friends. She won Webby's heart as she won the hearts of the students and faculty of Niles West.

Hoping they'd have success, the teachers of Niles West looked for Webby in their large, intricate offices. They checked every filing cabinet and briefcase, finding books and old papers...but no Webby.

Colophon

Spectrum, volume 43, was produced by the yearbook class at Niles West High School in Skokie, Illinois and printed by Herff Jones in Marceline, Missouri. The account was serviced by Maureen Olofsson and customer service adviser Pam Cox. The 2003-2004 yearbook staff developed the mystery theme "Where's Webby?" The cover was designed by the Spectrum staff and was incorporated into a four-color design, which was then lithographed. The endsheets are printed on white vibra color paper. The book is 256 pages that are printed on 100 pound premiere gloss. The 2003 volume includes 64 pages in full color. All body copy was set in 12-point American typewriter light, captions were in 8-point letter tiepolo. Headline fonts were American typewriter size 36. All pictures were taken by the Spectrum staff and Stuart Rodgers photography. All type was set by the plant. The signing pages were designed by the Spectrum staff on Photoshop. The staff submitted a disk using Herff Jones PageMaker 6.5 and Photoshop 6.1, on Macintosh computers. Photo processing and printing was done by Stuart Rogers photographers and local developers. Stuart Rodgers provided the portraits. The 1650 copies of the book were sold to 1600 students at $40.00 each. Spectrum is a member of NSPA, and NISPA.
